

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A portable computer and docking station locking structure in which the docking station has a lock provided inside the support arm thereof controlled by a key or the like, and the portable computer has a lock hole in the back side adapted to receive the swivel locking member of the lock for enabling the portable computer to be locked to the docking station after setting of the portable computer in the support arm of the docking station.

5